Economic Diplomacy between Nepal and Germany
19th AGM of NGCCI
Trade Fairs Calendar 2013 in GERMANY
BIOFACH
VIVANESS
Dear NGCCI Members,

It has been more than two decades of the continuation and professional growth; NGCCI has made its mark in the promotion and development of economic bi-lateral relations with Germany and recently Europe after the concept of EU. We have organized successful business programs with active involvement of its members including government, non-government and our development partners. We will continue to endeavor our efforts to achieve the chamber’s goals by organizing more events, which will be beneficial to the members and will also contribute in the national economy.

Before I write further I am immensely pleased to welcome the new German Ambassador His Excellency Mr. Frank Meyke who also visited in our chamber. I briefed him about the chamber and its activities and further discussed on the future plans and programs where chamber and embassy can work together to enhance the bilateral economic growth between two countries. Along with the Ambassador coincidently we have new Country Director of GIZ Mr. Roland F. Steurer to Nepal. On behalf of the chamber and myself I would like to welcome him. I am very confident that the chamber will accomplish many programs with his cooperation and guidance.

NGCCI organized a High Level Business Delegation to Germany and Belgium under the leadership of Minister for Commerce and Supplies Hon’ble Mr. Lekh Raj Bhatta to promote and extend a stronger relationship between the professionals and business communities of Nepal, Germany and Belgium in February and March 2012. The chamber organized Business Visit to DRUPA 2012, largest printing equipment exhibition in the world. NGCCI has been successfully coordinating continuously country’s participation in Europe’s largest public exhibition Caravan, Motors and Tourism Fair (CMT) at Stuttgart since 1994 promoting Nepal and Nepalese Tourism. NGCCI has a keen interest on coordinating and obtaining representation of major Trade Fairs of Germany and bridging the contacts with the messe authorities.

The country is still undergoing political upheaval and finally determined to have national election, which is the only ultimate process for the stabilization of the country. I hope this consensus of political parties to hold the election will remain unchanged and we will have election on November 19, and will have our new constitution, which will relief the country from confusion, create harmony and achieve economic goal of the country.

Let me welcome in the chamber CIM - Expert Ms. Christine Falkenberg, a support from GIZ for Economic Promotion. We hope to use her expertise for the further increase in services to members and non-members.

Last but not the least, I would like to thank Publication committee Chairperson Mr. Anup Malla, committee members and the secretariat for bringing out this third issue.

Thank you and looking forward for the extended progress of bi-lateral economic growth between Nepal and Germany.

Kathmandu July 2013

Gopal Sunder Lal Kakshapati
President
It is great pleasure for me to present to our dear members, partners, well wishers and those with interest in Nepalese German relations the 3rd edition of the NGCCI Newsletter "NGCCI News". The NGCCI News is the official publication of the chamber to provide you with more business information of export markets and important business events. In our effort to focus on specific export sector in each issue, this issue focuses on Medicinal Herbs and Aromatic Plants (MAPs) presuming very high potential to export in our partner country Germany and in EU countries beside other existing products.

The country's high biodiversity combined with the ancient knowledge and long tradition of Ayurveda offer a vast range of new business activities such as health tourism and production of ayurvedic pharmaceutical products. Besides, the saps and essential oils extracted from different plants can be used as ingredients for producing various consumer products such as cosmetics, fragrances and food products. Nepal exports an estimated 6,000 tonnes of herbal products annually. The main objective of dedicating this issue in Medicinal Herbs and Aromatic Plants (MAPs) is to consolidate and propagate the information in details of this sector.

I hope this issue of NGCCI News will be very informative and valuable. I highly appreciate the time and efforts of all persons involved in publishing this Newsletter. I would like to extend my heartfelt thanks to all the members and other organizations, who supported by placing advertisement, CEO Saraswati Maharjan and the entire Secretariat staff for their hard work to publish this issue.

Any comments and suggestions, for improvement of the Newsletter will be highly appreciated and can be addressed directly to the NGCCI Secretariat.

NGCCI thanks the Contributors for NGCCI Apartment

In the year 2005, NGCCI succeeded in achieving an important asset of its own premises for its Secretariat at ACE Apartment in Naxal, Narayanchour. One of the most important steps for the purchase of ACE apartment 101 was all the Executive Committee Members of NGCCI lend the interest free loan of Rs. 3.3 million. By this solidarity of the Executive Committee members, the chamber has its own secretariat.

We feel very proud to inform that, most of our Executives, who have provided the interest free loan 8 years ago have donated the loan amount to the chamber, which is a great initiative to reduce the loan burden of the chamber to quite extent. Besides, we also appreciate the kind gesture shown towards the chamber’s initiative by the new members as well. NGCCI would like to thank all contributors for this remarkable support and contribution to the chamber.

Token of appreciation was presented by Hon’ble Finance Minister Barsha Man Pun at the Nineteenth AGM. The name of contributors is also engraved in the brass plate which is placed at the Chamber.

In 2006 she started assignments as consultant for different German development cooperation organizations. From 2006 to 2010 she was assigned as technical advisor by former Deutscher Entwicklungsdienst ggmbH and consulted selected regional chambers of the Uzbek Chamber of Commerce and Industry. For sequa G mbH she managed the project “Capacity Development of Business Membership Organizations in India”, a component of the “Umbrella Programme for the Promotion of MSME in India”, which is implemented by Deutsche Gesellschaft fuer Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ) GmbH in the period from 2011 to 2012.

Her education includes a Master in American studies, Slavic studies and East- and Southeast European history (Berlin, 1983), a postgraduate degree in system analysis and programming (Berlin, 1986), a Certificate in Commercial Instruction (Potsdam, 1997) and another Master in Public Management (Potsdam, 2006).

Honorary Consul General of Nepal Ram Pratap Thapa visited NGCCI Secretariat on Feb 12, 2013. During his visit a brief meeting was held with CEO Saraswati Maharjan and CIM Expert Christine Falkenburg. Honorary Consul General Thapa who is also the Representative of NGCCI showed keen interest in NGCCI activities. He extended his full support for NGCCI in and its activities. Upcoming programs of NGCCI areas of mutual cooperation were discussed at the meeting. A token of appreciation was also presented during his visit.

Sagar Tamarakar, Graduate in Management from Hansraj College, University of Delhi, completed his Internship at NGCCI from December 2011 to May 2012. Likewise, Saman Maharjan, pursuing his study in Management from Tribhuwan University completed his internship at NGCCI from June 2012 to October 2012. Both Interns were of great help to the Chamber as they assisted in research, publications and other activities. NGCCI wishes all the best for their success in coming days.
Economic Diplomacy between Nepal and Germany

Nepal tied up the diplomatic relationship with Germany 55 years back in 1958. Since then the government of Nepal has appointed 5 Honorary Consul Generals in different cities beside own Embassy in Bonn and Berlin at present.

Three years after the establishment of the relationship in 1961 first technical assistance started with Technical Training Institute at Thapathali and have continued since then in various areas contributing close to billion Euros. Finance Ministry of Nepal and Federal Ministry of Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ) of Germany decide every two year for the further development of economic cooperation and one of the highlights is 70 MW Middle Marsyangdi Hydro Project.

The outcome of such diplomatic relationship slowly diverse on bilateral trade besides coffining to diplomatic relationship and Germany became the biggest market for Nepalese products dominating in textile particularly Carpets. It is noteworthy to mention here Germany is among the few countries Nepal has trade surplus except in the year 2007-08. In regards of tourism, German tourist arrival had reached nearly 45,000 but decreased to 12,000 in 2006 mainly due to the insurgency. Fortunately since last few years it is slowly increasing and has reached 24,575 in 2012.

FDI: In regards of FDI there are only 87 companies registered under the Ministry of Industry despite of many efforts and promotion from Nepalese side. This is the 16th position along with other countries' investment in Nepal and 5th position in terms of highest investment standing.

NGCCI: As explained earlier, with the growing bilateral activities with Germany, Nepalese German Chamber of Commerce of Industry was established in 1990, it is the first bilateral chamber in Nepal. The main objective of the chamber is for the development and enhancement of the economic activities between two countries providing various services in relating with economic issues for Nepalese and German business communities. Since establishment, the chamber had organized numerous programs, projects, promotions including High Level Business Delegations in Germany, participating in various trade fairs and also coordinating Nepal's participation in Tourism Trade Fair CMT since 1994.

We have been closely working together with both Embassies in Nepal and Germany, Honorary Consul Generals, Developing Agencies like GIZ in Nepal. The experiences working with above mentioned institutions frankly had not been smooth sailing all the time. Most of the occasion we had accomplished our goals. But occasionally we had difficulties understanding each other and did not achieved any outcome as expected from both sides. In other word, we had failed to accomplish the economic diplomacy occasionally.

The most important we have to note is our counterpart the government of Germany has keen interest and policy with Nepal for establishment of peace and stability, multi-party democracy, promotion of human rights, alleviations of poverty, consolidation of good governance and sound socio-economic structure. We know very well what is the existing status of all mentioned earlier. In our last visit to Germany with High Level Business Delegation led by then Hon'ble Minister of Commerce Mr. Lekh Raj Bhatta had numbers of meeting with parliamentarian. Over the economic discussion with the German Parliamentarians, they clearly indicated first to improve in the areas as per their interest and policies determined for Nepal. After improving positively the German government is keen to extend the improvements of economic diplomacy between Nepal and Germany. Thus the development of the economic diplomacy does not confine within economic agenda but has direct impact on political situations and relation. If Nepal is to improve or develop the economic diplomacy with Germany, we are bound to change our prevailing political socio scenario where private sector have very little role to play.

*The million-dollar question is has our policy makers ever considered and showed their interest or commitments to address their views. The growth will be stagnant until we progress and our counterpart is convinced.

Due to security reasons there is a hesitance to recommend for FDI, by foreign Government to any investor. A wrong impression of Middle Marsyangdi is still fresh with German government and investors.

Recommendations:
Nepalese government must establish frequent dialogue with counterpart in all levels including bureaucrat's levels to enhance economic diplomacy.
Diplomatic missions like Embassy must strengthen and give priority to economic agenda and establish strong economic desk.
Honorary Consul Generals must be well informed, briefed and involve them to enhance the economic diplomacy.
Ministry of Finance and Foreign Affairs must establish cordial relationship with bi-lateral chambers and exchange the views in economic agendas.
Nepal Investment Board must involve bi-lateral chambers in the plans and programs.

In conclusion, I would like to appeal the policy makers, government and all the related institutions to work towards in house order in Nepal by establishing peace, harmony and security in the country to establish strong economic diplomacy with any country.
Nepal’s economy has continued the trend of trade deficit. The trade balance remained strongly in a deficit (424 bn NRP) the deficit growth rate has increased by 25.3 percent - in comparison to 5.8 percent in FY 2010/11. The huge trade deficit has negative consequences for the Nepalese economy and is a matter of utmost importance to be managed by the Nepalese government.

In FY 2009/10, due to slightly increase exports, sharply increasing imports and a decelerating growth rate of remittances - which account for around 20 percent of GDP and are transferred by an increasing number of 1.5 to 2 million Nepalese working in foreign countries - Nepal has seen for its first time a current account deficit of -2.4 percent of GDP. In FY 2011/12, the current account balance has improved and remained at 2.0 percent.

The volatility of major international commodity prices such as petrol / gas, iron, gold and agricultural products which accounts for an important part of the total imports highly influences the total import value. Additionally, the high dependency on remittances for the Nepalese economy has to be reconsidered by all economic stakeholders taking into consideration the social unrests in the Middle East where the majority of Nepalese workers migrate to and the significant direct consequences for Nepal in case of economic slowdown or policy changes in the host countries.

In FY 2011/12, the growth rate of exports increased by 14.8 percent to 74.09 bn NRP in comparison to FY 2010/11. The raise in Nepalese exports can be attributed to the worldwide economic recovery and the thereof improved income situation of the private households as Nepal exports mostly consumer goods bought by private households. Exports to major trading partners such as India (+18.8%), USA (+26.4%), Japan (+17.6%), Germany (+7.1%), China (+32.1%) and UK (+5.2%) increased in FY 2011/12 in comparison to the previous year.

Nepalese imports amounts to 498.16 bn NRP which is an increase by 25.3 percent in comparison to the previous year. Major trading partners such as India (+24%), China (+15.9%), Germany (+10.3%), UAE (+13%) and USA (+24.3%) saw exceptional growth rates, clearly above average. Imports from Turkey (-77.28%), Switzerland (-22.07%), Egypt (-40.07%) and Singapore (-20.94%) amongst others declined considerably.

Trade concentration with India reached in FY 2011/12 its peak, accounting for about two-thirds of Nepal’s total trade. The trade deficit between the two countries amounts to 270.41 bn NRP.

Regarding the development of major export products in FY 2011/12 Nepal’s important carpet industry could raise its exports by 22.0 percent up to 6 bn NRP. Agricultural export products such as export of tea slightly increased by 1.5 percent but the export of lentils fell by 20 percent. There is huge increase in export of cardamom and ginger by 71.1 percent and 80 percent respectively. Export products of the manufacturing industry such as zinc sheets and wires, metal tubes and jute sacks saw an increase by 9.6%, 38.3%, 43.3% and 10.9% respectively.

According to FHAN, exports of Nepali handicraft products (metal and woodcraft) observed an increase of 11.5 per cent, exports of Nepali paper and paper products gained by 47.2 per cent. Similarly, export of readymade garments and silver jewellery increased by 30.8 per cent and 21.5 per cent respectively, as compared to the previous fiscal year.

Exports of pashmina, which is another major exportable product of the country, also observed an increment of 42.1 per cent in fiscal year 2011/12. With regular branding and marketing of Nepali pashmina, ‘Chyangra Pashmina’ has successfully become an internationally registered trademark in many countries and the process going on to register the brand in other potential countries.

According to Nepali Pashmina Industries Association (NPIA), registration of the ‘Chyangra Pashmina’ trademark in the international market has revived the goodwill of the Nepali pashmina brand.
Nepal-German Trade 2011/2012

Nepal-German trade relations improved in FY 2011/12. The bilateral trade volume increased by 8.55 percent to 5.5 bn NRP. The Nepal-German trade relations are among the very few with a positive trade balance for Nepal (after Bangladesh and USA). In comparison to the previous year the trade balance has decreased to 397 million NRP. This is primarily a result of the slight positive development of Nepalese exports to Germany which rose by 7.1 percent to 3 bn NRP and imports increased from Germany to 2.6 bn NRP (+10.3%). Germany is one of the biggest export markets for Nepal and ranked on 3th place after India and USA.

Exports to Germany

Traditionally, textile products such as carpets, apparels & accessories, pashminas (woollen shawls) and felt products are the major export goods constituting about 90 percent of the total Nepalese exports to Germany. The carpet exports alone account for almost 60 percent of total exports. Germany is the second biggest export market for Nepalese carpet producers after USA. In FY 2011/12, the carpet exports climbed by 22 percent in value but decreased by 17.9 percent in quantity (sqm). A considerable raise experienced in the exports of apparels & accessories which grew by 10.8 percent in comparison to the previous year.

Agricultural goods primarily tea and also increasingly coffee, figure a continuously bigger part of the total exports to Germany and account meanwhile for 4.3 percent of total exports to Germany. In FY 2011/12, tea exports to Germany increased by 36 percent to 64.7 mill. NRP. That makes Germany the second biggest export market for Nepalese (orthodox) tea, after India.

Imports from Germany

Although total Nepalese imports from Germany experienced increase of 9.31% to 2.6bn NRP in FY 2011/12 in comparison to previous year considerable changes between the product groups have taken place. Machineries and equipments (esp. for the food processing, printing and textile industry) were, traditionally, the major import goods from Germany amounting for more than 50 percent of total imports. In FY 2011/12, this product group remained almost constant to 883.7 mill. NRP accounting for only 34.4 percent of total imports. On the other hand, imports of vehicles etc. from Germany have declined by -0.6 percent. Medical and laboratory devices also remained constant accounting now for around 9.5 percent of total imports. Imports of food products inclined by 0.4 percent in FY 2011/12 in comparison to previous year.
Nepal’s Trade Development in Eleven months of FY 2012 / 13

According to TEPC during the first 11 months of FY 2012/13, the country’s export increased by 1.9% to Rs. 69.30 billion and import surged by 22.7% to Rs. 549.63 billion. The total trade deficit surged by 26.5 percent to stand at Rs. 480.33 billion as compared to the same period last year. During the review period, export of traditional products like woollen carpets and readymade garments were decreased whereas the data showed some improvement in export of agro products.

Earlier, carpets and readymade garments were the leaders in exports, but due to their inability to compete in the international market, the exports nosedived. Exports of these products until a few years ago used to cross Rs 10 billion each. But the situation has worsened to such an extent that as of the 11th month of the last fiscal year, readymade garment exports stood at Rs 3.33 billion, and carpet exports at Rs 5.1 billion which is decrease by 16.3% and 13% respectively compared to the same period last fiscal year according to the TEPC statistics.

According to Carpet Exporter’s Association, increased cost of production and tough competition in the international market, inadequate publicity and labour shortages are the major factors behind the fall in capet exports. A long with collective trademark, the industry also needs proper cash incentive to gain market competitiveness. Nepali hand knotted carpet are sold in the international market with a trade name ‘Original Nepal’ but it has still not received any authentication due to which the product is being duplicated by different countries and are sold at 30 per cent below Nepali hand knotted carpet’s price.

During the review period, the data showed substantial increase in export of ginger by 208%, medicinal herbs by 56%, tube, pipes, hollow profiles of iron and steel by 54% and meat by 97%. Export of tea, cardamom, lentils, handicrafts, hides and skins, jute bags and sacks, wire and iron observed an increment by 28%, 7%, 19%, 16%, 22%, 10% and 16% respectively. Meanwhile, export of nepali paper products, pashmina, vegetable fats and oil, flat rolled product of iron and non alloy steel decreased by 11.3%, 6.8%, 43.1% and 63.4% respectively.

Total imports surged in the review period mainly due to the rapid increase in imports of petroleum products, vehicles and spare parts, cement, rice and other machinery and parts, telecommunication equipment parts, silver, readymade garments, pipe and pipe fittings, chemical fertilizers among others. Petroleum imports are the biggest contributors to the country’s trade deficit. Fuel imports alone amounted to more than Rs 100 billion in the 11 months, according to the TEPC. As a majority of the imported products from petroleum to raw materials—are the necessities, there is little scope for reducing the trade deficit in the near future.

During 11 months of FY 2012/13 due to high growth of imports compared to exports, the ratio of export to import declined to 1:7.9 % from 1:6.6 % a year ago.
EU stands ready to support developing countries realize the benefits of a WTO Trade Facilitation Agreement

Development Commissioner Andris Piebalgs and Trade Commissioner Karel De Gucht have joined forces to help secure a WTO Trade Facilitation Agreement as part of global efforts to increase trade’s contribution to development. The EU’s support responds to demands from Least-Developed Countries (LDCs) for help to make the most of the deal, which could be agreed at the WTO’s 9th Ministerial Conference in December 2013.

"I see only good opportunities", said EU Trade Commissioner Karel De Gucht. "Trade facilitation is about better customs procedures, cutting red tape, fighting corruption, and cutting costs for business. Cutting the cost of trade by just 1% would increase worldwide income by over €30 billion and two thirds of this would go to developing countries. Getting agreement in the WTO on trade facilitation would also send a powerful signal about the strength of the multilateral trade system and its ability to produce tangible results for the international community."

Development Commissioner Andris Piebalgs added, "Making it easier and cheaper to trade will help developing countries to better integrate in regional and global trade system. This will contribute to facilitate trade development and diversification, enhance job-creation and the wider sharing of the benefits of international trade. Reducing trade costs effectively require targeting of the binding constraints and proper sequencing of reforms. I therefore invite our partners to formulate trade facilitation plans with clear, specific and targeted requests for support. Within its overall Aid for Trade commitments, the EU stands ready to contribute its fair share and provide continued and substantial support for trade facilitation."

Trade facilitation refers to measures aimed at simplifying, modernising and harmonising merchandise import, improving tax collection at the border, export and transit procedures, especially customs requirements. Possible measures include simplifying rules, reducing the number of and standardising custom forms, and computerisation. The WTO Trade Facilitation Agreement could create an international framework for reforms. The EU hopes that such a deal could be adopted at the WTO’s 9th Ministerial Conference in Bali, Indonesia on 3-6 December 2013.

The EU has started working on the allocation of its development aid for the period 2014-2020, time is ripe for our partners to reflect about their trade needs in their priorities with the EU.

BACKGROUND

Today, there is a yawning gap between developed and developing countries when it comes to border procedures. On average, OECD countries demand five documents at customs and it takes them 10 days to clear goods at a cost of about €735 per container. In contrast, African countries require on average twice as many documents, up to 35 days to clear exports and 44 days to clear imports, at an average cost per container of €1,285 for exports and €1,535 for imports. The OECD estimates that reducing global trade costs by 1% would increase world-wide income by more than USD 40 billion, 65% of which would go to developing countries.

Several developing countries have already carried out reforms. For a relatively modest investment of about €2-8 million, the benefits can be huge. According to the 2011 Global Aid for Trade Review, customs reform in Cameroon increased revenues by 12%; in Mozambique the figure was 50% in two years despite big tariff cuts. In Mozambique goods now clear customs in two to five days compared to 30 days before. In Sub-Saharan Africa cutting time spent at the border by 5% could achieve a 10% increase in formal intra-regional trade and revenue losses from inefficient border procedures are put at over 5% of GDP.

The cost of implementing trade facilitation reforms is relatively modest, though costs will vary from country to country. The World Bank has found country costs ranging from $3 to $11 million and OECD from $3.5 to $19.7 million.

Trade facilitation falls under Aid for Trade, which covers all financing for trade or trade-related activities. The EU and its Member States are the largest provider of Aid for Trade in the world, despite the current economic crisis. In 2010, they accounted for around a third of the total in existing Multiannual Financial Framework, and as part of committing some €10.7 billion. In the context of the existing Multiannual Financial Framework, and as part of their 2007 Aid for Trade Strategy and G20 commitment, EU and its Member States have made commitments that Aid for Trade would be maintained beyond 2011 at levels that, at least, reflect the average of the years 2006-2008, and that more resources should be directed towards LDCs. The EU and its Member States have committed themselves to together spend €2 billion a year on Trade-Related Assistance by 2010, with €1 billion from Member States and €1 billion from the EU. Between 2007 and 2010, the EU provided on average €70 million of trade facilitation support every year. A verage Member State contributions raised the figure to €125 million per year.

Nepal’s business potentials

The Himalayan region is considered to be a unique storehouse of medicinal and aromatic plants (MAPs). Due to its unique geography and varied agro-climatic environment Nepal possesses tremendous resources of medicinal plants and thereof extracted essential oils. There are approximately 1,500 plant species used for medicinal, aromatic and religious purposes by indigenous people in Nepal. Most of these species are found at higher geographical altitudes but also the Terai region (bordering to India) dispose about a high biodiversity. A larger number of populations are traditionally engaged in conservation, cultivation and collections of MAPs and earn their livelihood through it.

Nepalese MAPs sector is low industrialized and a considerable proportion of business potentials remain unexplored: approximately only 10 percent of herbs are processed or turned into final products in Nepal. The country’s high biodiversity combined with the ancient knowledge and long tradition of Ayurveda offer a vast range of new business activities such as health tourism and production of ayurvedic pharmaceutical products. Besides, the saps and essential oils extracted from different plants can be used as ingredients for producing various consumer products such as cosmetics, fragrances and food products.

Nepal exports an estimated 6,000 tonnes of herbal products annually. The sector has an investment base of around Rs 15 billion. India, China, Singapore, Germany, France, Italy and Czech Republic are the main importers of Nepali medicinal herbs. The sector provides around 1.4 million jobs.

Total exports of MAPs in FY 2011/12 were about 805 million NPR. Export of MAPs are on an upward trend due to promotion of organic products and growing attraction for commercial farming. There has been a sharp rise in demand in the international market for MAPs which have been placed high on the list of exportable goods. According to the Trade and Export Promotion Centre (TEPC), exports of medicinal herbs almost doubled during the first seven months of FY 2012/2013 to Rs 989.79 million year on year as exports during all of the last fiscal year amounted to Rs 805.37 million.

According to the Nepal Herbs and Herbal Producers’ Association (NHHPA), manufacturers have been showing increasing inclination to obtain organic certification along with a rise in commercial farming. Commercial farming is becoming more popular mainly in the Terai region and Western Nepal.

The agricultural sector has traditionally a very important role within the Nepalese economy: the sector contributes
Some details about the production of large cardamom and ginger in Nepal:

According to Large Cardamom Entrepreneurs' Association of Nepal, annual production of large cardamom is 5.51 million kg from the production area of 12,574 hectares in 2011/2012. The total export reached to 5.31 million kg with export value of Rs. 3.49 billion in 2011/2012. Though it is cultivated in nearly 40 districts of mid hill region, 97 percent of large cardamom cultivation is, however, concentrated in seven districts of Eastern Development Region — Taplejung, Panchthar, Ilam, Dhankuta, Bhojpur, Terhathum and Sankhuwasabha, according to production statistics.

According to Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), Nepal is the third largest producer of ginger after China and India in 2011 but organised value chain development will help it become the topmost producer. The country produced 216.28 million kg of ginger in 2011. The production of ginger is concentrated in Nepal's hill region. Ilam, Palpa, Salyan, Doti, Morang, Kailali, Surkhet and Syangja are the major ginger producing districts. The export of ginger in the year 2011/2012 was 23.94 million kg with export value of Rs. 507.59 million.

Although not being focus of this edition, it is important to mention in this context that the availability of varied climatic conditions and inexpensive labour provide Nepal a comparative advantage to produce flower and flower seeds at low cost. This sector has increased considerably during the past years its activities and exports its products to Europe, USA, Gulf countries, Japan and China. Besides, Nepal is endowed with good ecological conditions to more than 35 percent of the gross domestic product (GDP), employs more than 74 percent of the national labor force and has a share of over 25 percent to the total Nepalese exports. It is expected that the agricultural sector increased notably its production in FY 2011/12 mainly due to favorable weather conditions, an intensive use of fertilizer and the adoption of more productive varieties.

Various government policies aim to strengthen the development of the agricultural sector and its export activities, considering the broad positive impacts of this sector in terms of employment, income generation especially for deprived social groups and poverty alleviation. The Nepal Trade Integration Strategy (NTIS) 2010, a multi-donor supported capacity development action plan with short- to medium-term priorities in order to induce an export-enhancing business environment, contains market potential analyses for 19 selected export goods and services. Among these products, of which seven products are related to the agro and food industry, medicinal plants, large cardamom and ginger are rated as high and medium export potential products. Furthermore, the Trade Policy 2009 as well as the Industrial Policy 2010 stated the Ayurveda and spices sector as a priority sector for the promotion of industrial activity and trade. Consequently, technology and expertise of foreign companies could be effectively employed to develop these profitable agro and forest-based industries in Nepal.
for the cultivation of a variety of fruits. Various opportunities exist for the setting up of industries to process fruits for sale in export markets as fruit juices and squash, jams etc.

Relevant organizations for the ayurvedic and agro industries in Nepal are the Ministry of Agricultural Development of Nepal (www.moad.gov.np), the Agro Enterprise Centre of the Federation of Nepalese Chambers of Commerce and Industry (www.aecncci.org) and the International Centre for Integrated Mountain Development (www.icimod.org).

Export Market Presentation: EU and Germany

The following information aims to give the reader a first overview about the European spices and herbs market, with a focus on the German market. It is understood that further research needs to be done by the entrepreneur himself in order to explore market possibilities, to find business partners and to export to the European market.

For doing so, interested entrepreneurs find internet research sources and business contacts in the last chapter of the newsletter. An important source of information is the database of the Centre for the Promotion of Imports from Developing Countries (CBI, www.cbi.eu) and the Export Helpdesk of the European Commission (www.exporthelp.europa.eu). The European Commission has launched the new version of Export Helpdesk which is a free online service and a one-stop-shop to explain to businesses in developing countries regarding EU requirements, taxes, tariffs, preferential arrangements, rules of origin and statistics applying to their case.

Spices and Herbs

The popularity and use of spices and herbs vary considerably within the EU since every region has its own food habits, dishes and tastes. Moreover, EU-countries differ notably in their economic constitutions and regarding the availability of a processing industry which leads to a very varied quantitative consumption and consumption patterns of spices and herbs within the EU.

The European market is still one of the most attractive markets for spices and herbs. There is a strong demand for suppliers that are able to deliver high quality and processed spices and herbs.

CBI states that the total EU imports of spices and herbs reached 1.6 billion Euro in 2011 and in volume terms, to around 390 thousand tonnes. Imports from Developing countries is increasing in an average of 13% per year amounting to 875 million Euro, whereas overall imports increased by an average of 12%. Largest EU markets are the Germany, Netherlands, UK and France, accounting for 56 percent of the total EU market. The largest part of imports from Developing countries still consists of unprocessed (i.e. low value) spices and herbs. However, there is a strong demand for supplies of value added products.

With a share of 25 percent of total EU imports of spices and herbs from Developing countries, pepper is the largest product group imported, followed by paprika, chillies and all spices (17%) are the most important products from Developing countries.

The European spices and herbs market is highly competitive and its major competitive issues are quality and consistency of quality, followed by strong research and development, in order to provide innovation and a variety of flavors. Highly linked with the quality concerns is the matter of traceability which is for producers in developing countries a crucial requirement in order to maintain the business relations with their European partners. The emphasis on quality has led to a higher degree of customer loyalty and long-term business relations which makes it more difficult for newcomers to find business partners and to enter on the market. Given the supermarket chains offer only a very limited range of organic spices and herbs. Exporters from developing countries need to keep an eye on these changes. Adapting their product portfolio and targeting the right market can be essential in the EU.

Due to climatic conditions and high labor costs Europe is generally a minor producer of spices and herbs. Commonly grown herbs in the EU countries are: basil, bay leaves, celery leaves, chives, dill tips, chervil, juniper, marjoram, oregano, parsley, rosemary, sage, savory, tarragon, thyme and watercress. The largest EU producers are Germany, Austria, Bulgaria, Spain, Poland and Hungary. France, Italy and Greece are important producers of dried herbs, although there is a low consumption of dried herbs in those countries. In 2010 production of spices amounted to 113 thousand tones.

INFO BOX: Trade Channels

Spices and herbs usually share the same trade structure and distribution channels. Very few traders deal exclusively in either spices or herbs. The bulk of the trade enters the EU through a small number of major brokers and traders/importers. A round 85 percent of the spices and herbs are imported in dried and crude form; processing occurs after importation by the companies which are familiar with the market trends, tastes and needs.

Traditionally, the spices and herbs trade channels consisted of importers, brokers, agents, grinders, blenders and processors, each having their specific functions. Nowadays, many of them have become multifunctional and their roles overlap. Different types of trading activity are often carried out at the same time within one company. For more information about the role of the different trade channels please have also a look in the previous editions of NGCCI News.

In recent years, direct trade between medium-sized and large producers/exporters in developing countries and grinders/processors in consuming markets has become more prevalent. Both importers and processors increasingly move away from dealing with many small growers, choosing instead to deal with whoever combines high quality, high volume and consistent products.

In terms of market segmentation, the major end-users of spices and herbs can be divided into three end user segments. In almost all EU countries, the largest proportion, being around 55 to 60 percent – and in some countries even more – of the total consumption of spices and herbs, is used by the industrial sector. The biggest industrial consumers of spices and herbs are the meat industry, the food-processing industry, (like sauces, soups etc.), bakery goods and other prepared convenience food and non-food industries like pharmaceutical and perfumery where spices and herbs are mainly used for the production of essential oils. The retail sector consumes around 30 to 35 percent and the catering sector (e.g. restaurants, canteens etc.) around 10 to 15 percent. It can be observed that in most markets, the market allocation is moving towards higher relative usage by the industrial sector, reflecting the growing popularity of ready-to-use food products as Europeans spend less time for the preparation of a full meal and consequently, so-called convenience meals are gaining more and more market shares.

Despite the relatively small impact of the economic recession, the spice and herb market is constantly changing. Product quality and variety have become major focuses of the EU food industry, making it essential for suppliers of spices and herbs to follow these trends. As a result of internationalization and the large number of immigrants, consumers increasingly adopt eating and cooking habits which were once considered foreign.

In recent years, increased consumer awareness of healthy lifestyles and sustainability issues has positively influenced the demand for organic and fair trade products. Additionally, until now, the mainstream retail market for organic spices and herbs still remains relatively small as...
Medicinal and Aromatic Plants

Although the EU is one of the biggest importers of medicinal and aromatic plants, Nepalese exports to the EU still remain minimal. A look at the statistics about the European pharmaceutical market reveals that the EU accounts for 31 percent of pharmaceutical sales worldwide and 36 percent of production of pharmaceuticals. As MAPs are increasingly demanded as ingredients for pharmaceutical products and also the production of herbal medicine itself gains momentum, it becomes clear what business potentials the European market offers for Nepalese entrepreneurs.

According to CBI statistics, the EU, which is responsible for one third of annual global MAPs imports, imported in 2011 MAPs amounting to 485 million Euro (174 thousand tonnes). The leading EU importers are Germany (35% of total imports), France (10%) and Spain (10%). Other emerging importers of MAPs are the Netherlands, UK, Switzerland, Czech Republic and Hungary. Imports from developing countries account for 45 percent of total imports and are increasing faster than overall imports. Germany with its large extraction industry and trade sector is the main market. In Germany demand for MAPs is expected to increase to 110 million Euro in 2014. Germany is the main point of entry for MAPs from developing countries, where they account for 50 percent of imports. Germany plays also a key role in distributing MAPs and processed products such as saps and extracts worldwide due to its outstanding position in the international trade business.

The major part of MAPs imports is still used by the medicinal/pharmaceutical industry followed by the cosmetic and (functional) food producing industries. Around 2,000 species are used commercially for medicinal purposes. In the medicinal sector MAPs are mainly used in cough and cold, digestive and skin products.

As for many other agricultural products processing of MAPs generally takes place in the EU. It is here where Nepalese companies should intensify their business activities in order to generate a larger part of the total value addition in Nepal. Nevertheless, in order to build up a processing industry, entrepreneurs need considerable financial resources, adequate technology and know-how as well as the knowledge to identify and meet international market trends.

The positive development of the demand of MAPs is further supported by various market trends. European societies experience strong socio-economic changes such as ageing populations which increase the demand for pharmaceutical products. Furthermore, European societies change their awareness towards health care and adopt healthier lifestyle which increase the expenditures in pharmaceutical products and also increase their interest on alternative medical/pharmaceutical products. Pharmaceutical but also cosmetic companies invest huge amounts in research and development of new products and are becoming more interested to launch “nature-based” products in order to increase the product’s efficiency and to meet up-coming consumption trends. Nevertheless, a decisive factor is as well the overall development of the public health sector.

Regarding the production of MAPs for pharmaceutical products in the EU it can be observed that the number of species cultivated commercially and the total area of cultivation is expanding. About 70 MAPs are cultivated in Germany on around 10 thousand hectares. Besides the production of cultivated plants, wild-collection remains important, especially in Eastern European countries like Czech Republic, Romania, Bulgaria, Poland and Hungary. After all, a vast of tropical and subtropical plant species is not produced in the EU, due to climatic reasons.

As the European pharmaceutical market is very strictly supervised (EU herbal medicine legislation) and highly dominated by big multinational companies, foreign entrepreneurs have always to keep in mind that the introduction of new medicinal products or even of new MAPs is extremely time-consuming. European demand focuses typically on well-known MAPs, specially those used in Western herbal medicine. There is, however some demand for less common (but not new unknown) species with interesting active properties, technical documentation (as required by the World Health Organization and the European Medicines Agency) and the documented history of use. This demand is even stronger for supplements.
Potential of Ayurveda-Herbal Industry in Nepal

The scope of herbal based health products, cosmetics, toiletries or food products becoming so popular that the coming years are more challenging as well as full of opportunity. Every year demand is increasing and the scale import volume from foreign countries especially from India is day by day increasing. Almost 90% of country demand is supplied from India. The irony is this that many raw herbs are exporting legal or illegal way to India, China and other countries in very low prices. The demand of supplying of raw herbs is also increasing and many herbs are already extinct and many of them are endangered also.

Two percent of global bio-diversity is in Nepal. Nepal is still rich in natural bio-diversity. The terrine of terai to alpine mountain has given special environmental ecosystem. There are many herbs which are unique and special and available only in Nepal. The climatic uniqueness is another special feature of Nepal.

Eighty percent populations in rural area are depending on these natural sources and more than 80% global population still depends on these resources as medicine or different form of uses.

Protection, preservation and eco-friendly and sustainable use of these natural resources is a serious concern. Demand and supply from different corner and over extraction or misuses of resources is making country in real disaster and coming years are more and more difficult if the proper measures not applied on time.

Nepal is rich in medical knowledge diversity. There are more than 400,000 traditional medical healer or resource holders, more than 4,500 handwritten ancient ayurvedic texts and more than 15,000 thousands recipes in practice since time immemorial.

World Trade Organizations, Trade related Intellectual Property Rights, World Health Organization and international, regional regimens are becoming more and more quality, safety, effective concerned. Good Manufacturing Practices (GMP) is compulsory and this is serious issue for every consumers. So, non bias treaty of international bindings and as signatory of international laws, country is not allowed to produce quality less health products. Preparedness is so weak, and all concerned industries are seems unaware about these issues.

Range of Herbal/Ayurveda Products in the market are in different forms like: Ayurveda Medicines, Herbal Cosmetics, Foods and Food additive, Herbal Drinks, Infusions and Herbal Teas, Health Supplements, Herbal Veterinary Products, Agriculture Products, Toiletries, Aromas, Incenses, Perfumes etc.

The legend of cultural medical knowledge, richness of natural bio-diversity, national and international demand of natural health products and dependence of rural community on these resources verifies the potential scope of Herbal Industry in Nepal. Financial and technical crunch is the barrier of the country. Any international entrepreneur or industry, or institution who is interested to invest or provide technical support will be very helpful for the individual as well as for the nation.

BIOFACH, the World Organic Trade Fair, takes place in the Exhibition Centre Nuremberg annually in February. It is a must event for the world’s organic professionals from the organic food, natural cosmetics, natural textiles and many other segments.

It is organized by NürnbergMesse under the auspices of the International Federation of Organic Agriculture Movements (IFOAM). The mother of all organic product trade fairs is and remains the international pacesetter for suppliers and buyers in the organic products sector.

BIOFACH takes place for the 25th year in succession in 2014 and can look back on an outstanding success story. It all began with 197 exhibitors in the Ludwigshafen Stadthalle in 1990. Some 2,500 visitors attended the “1st European Trade Fair for Organic Food and Natural Products” at that time. The exhibition was organized in Nuremberg for the first time in 1999.

VIVANESS – The International Trade Fair for Natural Personal Care was launched in 2007.

Natural cosmetics have been part of the product spectrum at BIOFACH (World’s leading Trade Fair for Organic Food) since the exhibition was launched in 1990. As the range of natural cosmetics grew constantly and the demand also increased, this segment was separated in 2007 and has taken place parallel to BIOFACH ever since as the independent exhibition VIVANESS.

Its product range covers high-quality, certified natural personal care and body care products along with drugstore articles. The range is complemented by products from the areas of natural-based, organic pharmacists, cures and remedies, wellness and accessories.

This makes VIVANESS the leading trade fair for natural personal care products and is held in high regard as an international meeting place by experts and specialists from the GreenBeauty sector.

BIOFACH, together with VIVANESS is an important business event for the organic sector, and both a get-together and an opportunity for positioning. It is the annual platform for:

w Sector and people: Nowhere else do all the customers, suppliers, partners and potential new customers meet personally in a comparable way than at BIOFACH and VIVANESS.

w Market and products: BIOFACH and VIVANESS are the platform for positioning. This is where supply meets demand – for both visitors and the exhibiting companies. Manufacturers present their company and products to the whole community at the world’s leading exhibition and observe and analyse the market and position themselves for the competition at the same time.

w Image and PR: The exhibition duo is used for imagebuilding by manufacturers and traders and all the stakeholders involved. With 1,000 media representatives from 36 countries and extensive media reporting, BIOFACH and VIVANESS offer a powerful PR platform.
Content and knowledge: Exhibitions are knowledge platforms. The BIOFACH Congress and VIVANESS Forum provide extensive information about the organic sector worldwide. 7,533 congress participants sourced information at 169 individual events in 2013.

Politics and public opinion: Every year, BIOFACH and VIVANESS gather representatives from politics, associations, NGOs, VIPs and other opinion formers and figures of public interest. There the organic stakeholders discuss matters concerning the future of the market and use this joint platform for shaping the future.

41,794 trade visitors from 126 countries (international share: 44 %) were delighted with the usual high-quality, varied and innovative range of products from the 2,413 exhibitors at this year's edition of the exhibition duo BIOFACH and VIVANESS. The top 5 countries for visitors were Italy, Austria, France and the Netherlands in addition to Germany.

Facts and Figures: BIOFACH and VIVANESS 2013
